To our 11.000 eNews readers,

The entire SCIA-team wishes you a 'happy new year' and a very productive 2006.

'Enabling innovation in construction' is our new 'mission-statement'.

Inspired by a study of VEV (a Flemish economic organisation, 'Being Unique Yields') concerning the most successful economies in the world, we formulate our wish to have an active participation in the innovation wave. Innovation is the key to your future success, both for products (or constructions), services or organisation methods and logistics. The strongest engineer offices, steel construction companies, contractors, prefab-companies, industries, public authorities and a lot of others, show ambition in market development and anticipate on international evolutions. As a result, they get a positive image in the market and a healthy growth.

Innovation by means of research & development is not easy; for this reason the obvious means is to enter in partnerships. The study shows that partnerships in innovation anticipate on the international situation (both export and import) and that market developments effectively lead to excellent results.

SCIA is your partner for technical automation in construction. Together with you we want to innovate. SCIA has the knowledge and the skill as well as an arsenal of software tools to support your innovation efforts.

For numerous market sectors we have set up development projects with customers during the past years. Actual cases can be retrieved on our Internet site (surf to Solutions, more specific the 'SCIA Solution Finder'). During the past years we have become very familiar in very specific fields, from prefab concrete to tunnels, bridges, masts, pipelines and steel and aluminium constructions.

Building codes, advanced analysis techniques and 'Building Information Modelling' are our profession.

In 2005, each day a new customer joined the SCIA customer community, which has by the way exceeded the cape of 5000! SCIA has customers in more than 50 countries, its software speaks 10 languages, there is a stable growth; moreover, SCIA has solid strategic partners.

At the start of the new year we already invite you to contact one of our specialists for an innovative talk. Just remember 'Being Unique Yields'!

Happy New Year!
May it be good, fortunate and prosperous
